

My experiences in England

I've been living in England for over three months now, that's what the calendar says but in reality, the time here passes so fast I can't believe that over half of my time in England is already over.

After two weeks of school in Totnes, I started my internship at Torquay Museum. I'm working in the shop which is also the Reception for tickets. Sometimes I also work in the café in the museum which is often quite funny because I had no experience of it. As you see I'm doing a lot of different things but unfortunately, I don't really work in the commercial field. However, I have a lot of contact with clients and the people in the museum are really friendly which makes me feel very comfortable in the museum.

We all live in different places, I live in a lovely town called Paignton with my host family and I'm only 5 minutes away from the sea.

In our free time, we visit different cities and towns, sometimes they are places near us like Dartmoor where wild horses live or sometimes they are further away like Bournemouth where we visited the other group. Another example is Bath which is an old Roman city. Of course, one city should not be missing and that's London. My family visited me and we visited the big city. We are also going to London with the group to celebrate my 18th birthday and I am very much looking forward to that and it'll be the fourth birthday we can celebrate here in England together. On my plan is still Liverpool and Manchester but I would like to see these cities during Christmastime.

A few days ago Halloween was celebrated here in England, for the English people Halloween is a very important day. Now the Christmas feeling is coming up and I'm especially looking forward to this special time. Luckily I have some weeks left to enjoy the time and I'm preparing myself for the exams which await us in some weeks. I'm already curious for the time in France but still looking forward to gaining here in England in the next week's more and more new memories and experiences.

Torbay Group in Bournemouth

Birthday Party

My work placement – Torquay Museum